Clinton Body count rises - "suicide" of Canadian pharmaceutical billionaires (pizzagate)

submitted 9 hours ago by Eggs-Vs-Bacon

Pizzagate because Clinton. Involves the Clinton Foundation.

Barry Sherman and his wife Honey - Canadian billionaires re Apotex Pharmaceuticals - were found hanged in their home by a realtor. Police are investigating. <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-5185511/Canadian-police-probe-suspicious-death-billionaire.html>

The Shermans were under investigation for a liberal fundraiser scandal.

<https://globalnews.ca/news/3030352/liberal-fundraisers-being-investigated-by-lobbying-watchdog/>

According to the Health and Human Rights Journal <https://www.hhrjournal.org/2013/08/a-one-time-only-combination-emergency-medicine-exports-under-canadas-access-to-medicines-regime/> there is a clear connection between Apotex and the Clinton Foundation

Read the article but this is the pertinent part

MSF had been conducting talks with a number of developing countries to encourage them to make use of the mechanism, but all efforts had been unsuccessful until Apotex was put in touch with the Clinton Foundation, which led Apotex to Rwanda.⁷⁰

In discussion with MSF, developing countries reported that they did not wish to self-identify because of pressure from pharmaceutical firms and the World Bank.⁷¹ Unless a country self-identifies, generic firms are not able to obtain a voluntary or compulsory license, so the process stalls. For months, until Rwanda came forward, it appeared as if no drugs would ever be produced under CAMR. In fact, facilitation by the Clinton Foundation followed. ARKANCIDED Canadian HIV/AIDS Legal Network at the 2006 XVI International A the legislation

"LITTLE SAINT JAMES" THE LOCATION WHERE SOME ALLEDGE THAT BILL CLINTON ENGAGES IN ANCIENT FERTILITY RITES WITH MINORS

FOX NEWS REPORTS: Bill Clinton's presence aboard Jeffrey Epstein's Boeing 727 on 11 occasions has been reported, but flight logs show the number is more than double that... Epstein, who counts among his pals royal figures, heads of state, celebrities and fellow billionaires, spent 13 months in prison and home detention for solicitation and procurement of minors for prostitution. He allegedly had a team of traffickers who procured girls as young as 12 to service his friends on "Orgy Island," an estate on Epstein's 72-acre island, called Little St. James, in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

ENGLISH WOMEN FREEMASONS AT AN INTERESTING CEREMONY

The Most Worshipful the Grand Master of the Honourable Fraternity of Ancient Freemasons was the title bestowed on Mrs. Seton Challen in the temple of the mother lodge in London, when she was installed leader of the only Masonic fraternity organised by women for women. The photograph shows Mrs. Challen (behind the sword-bearer) being escorted to the temple for the ceremony.

The oldest building on Harvard Law School's campus underwent a major transformation this year. Gannett House, the porticoed Greek Revival structure that has housed the Harvard Law Review since the 1930s, has been brought into the 21st century.

Gannett House
In a 1987 essay, "The Harvard Law Review—Glance of Its History as Seen by an Aficionado," former Dean Erwin Griswold L.L.B. '38 S.J.D. '39 wrote: "Gannett House is perhaps the most intensely used building in the law school. It was crowded when I knew it with thirty-five members of the law Review Board. How the present administration operates, with a Board of more than eighty members, has long been beyond my comprehension."

Nieman Lab Tribune gets Troncked: A reader's guide to the Tribune/Gannett war

You've had better things to do than follow every twist in this insane battle, so here's a primer on how things got so troncked up.

By KEN DOCTOR @doctor | July 1, 2014, 9:11 PM

In a move that, even amid all the nastiness of the Tribune/Gannett war, we would still have to consider stunning, Tribune Publishing has renamed itself — to tronc. In a memo to Tribune staff this afternoon, CEO Justin Dearborn wrote:

Today, I am pleased to announce another important step in our transformation — the renaming of our Company to tronc, or tribune online content. At our core, we remain a content curation and monetization company focused on creating and distributing premium, verified content across all channels. The rebranding acknowledges our important evolution as a company and captures the essence of our vision for the future.

In a war of corporate naming, it's apparently a race to the bottom. Tronc joins the two-year-old ex-Gannett broadcast company Tegna (or TEGNA! — Ed.) in the pantheon of odd corporate naming. Past followers of the Tribune Publishing saga will recall that a month ago Tribune chairman Michael Ferro and his hand-picked CEO Justin Dearborn had outlined Tribune's latest turnaround strategy around a Tronc "content monetization engine." Now Tronc — a logo and an idea on a whiteboard — has swallowed Tribune itself. Tribune becomes Tronction. [Maybe Tronction? — Ed.] Twitter is alive with outrage and laughs.

Soon-Shiong is the L.A. billionaire who just bought a 12.9 percent share of Tribune (er, Tronc), becoming its vice chairman in exchange for $70.5 million. He is also now the object of a lawsuit filed just this morning in the Delaware courts, accusing him, Ferro, and the Tribune board of subverting shareholders' interest in Tribune by not negotiating a sale to Gannett.

The Making of Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama - New York Magazine

Practically speaking, Gannett House was Obama's home during his second and third years at Harvard. Based on his high grades and a writing competition, he earned on spot on the review, where he spent countless hours poring over the manuscripts that came in from law professors from around the country. In the winter of 1990, the middle of his second year, with the review preparing to hold the election for its next president, Obama threw his hat in the ring, surprising everyone. "There were people on the review, we used to call them gunners," says Andrew Schapiro, one of Obama's contemporaries there, "because you knew from the minute they walked in to Gannett House that they wanted to be president. But that was not the sense you ever got from Barack."

Michelle Obama's Biographer on Nation's First African American First Lady - Democracy Now

Yes, I think this is such an interesting image. They both spent a lot of time in Gannett House, which, just as you say, the upper floors house the Harvard Law Review. And Barack Obama was the first African American president of the Law Review, and that was a major achievement and attracted national publicity and articles in The New York Times and the LA Times and really put him on the map at a young age and helped get him his first book contract, and he would use that to write Dreams from My Father. And so, he was on the upper floors, you know, rubbing shoulders with other editors and — you know, all of whom would go on to prestigious careers and be law clerks for Supreme Court justices.

But Michelle, when she was there, worked in the basement of Gannett House, and she was working for the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau. And that was also a prestigious position to hold, but she was working on behalf of poor people in Cambridge and surrounding counties, helping them with housing issues and child custody issues and, you know, pro se divorces and things like that.

Obama connection to Sidley Austin still strong

By James Brum
Nov. 10, 2013 at 9:00 AM

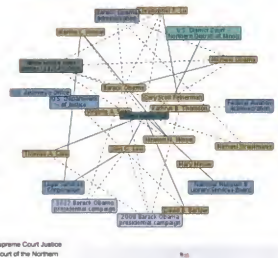

To those outside legal circles, Sidley Austin is probably best known as the Chicago law firm where Barack Obama and Michelle Obama met.

The future president was an intern in 1988. The future first lady was an associate. Barack Obama turned down a job offer at the end of his internship. Michelle Obama left the firm, and the two married in 1992.

Two decades later, Sidley Austin is tearing well under the Obama administration.

Current and former attorneys at the firm receiving presidential appointments include:

- Virginia A. Beitz - Beitz was a partner at Sidley Austin before being named assistant attorney general in 2011.
- Gary Scott Farnham - A former solicitor general of Illinois and clerk to Supreme Court Justice Anthony M. Kennedy, Farnham is now a federal judge with the District Court of the Northern District of Illinois.
- David B. Barlow - A partner at the firm from 2008 to 2010, Barlow is now U.S. attorney for the Utah district.
- John G. Levi - A current partner and a founder for the Obama 2008 and 2012 presidential campaigns, Levi chairs the Legal Services Corporation, a governmental corporation that funds legal aid for the poor.
- Christopher P. Lu - After working as a litigation associate at Sidley Austin, Lu moved to government. He was legislative director to then-Sen. Barack Obama and is now the president's cabinet secretary.
- Kathryn B. Thomson - Thomson, who is married to Lu, worked for 18 years at Sidley Austin. She became counselor to Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood in 2008, and was appointed chief counsel of the Federal Aviation Administration in 2012.
- Michael Braubach - Like Lu, Braubach worked with Obama before 2008; he was chief counsel and deputy chief of staff during Obama's first term in the Senate. He previously practiced complex litigation and employment law at Sidley Austin.

That drags the company back into court, just two years after it emerged from the five-year bankruptcy from Sam Zell hell. (For those with short memories, he's the previous newspaper newbie who tanked the company.) Now as the tech entrepreneur Ferro has taken control, that courtroom entanglement looks like it could repeat itself.

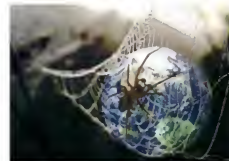

And finally today, in an L.A. law office, Tribune held its annual meeting, voting in its directors — a group suitors Gannett has opposed. That "withhold" election has now spawned its own war of words, a colorful adjunct to a kind of corporate fight that usually remains mum in the boardrooms.

Got all that?

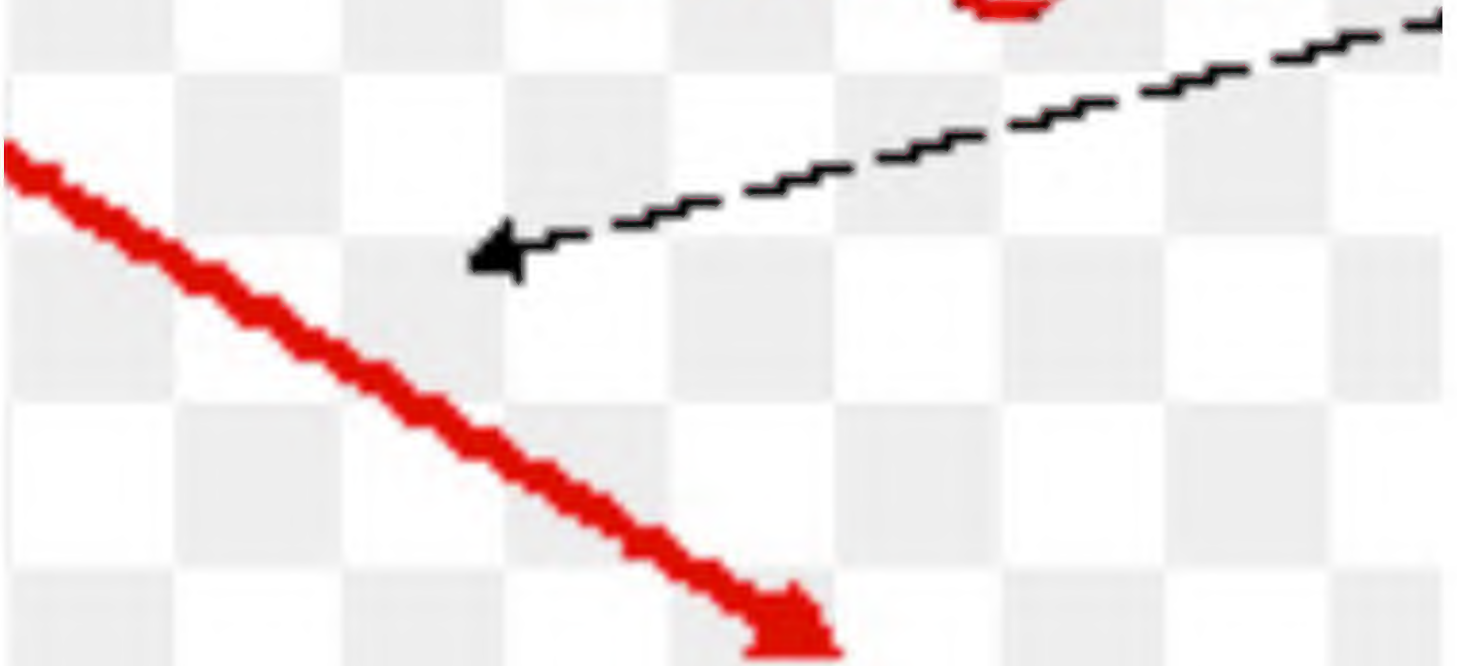

Enter Sidley Austin ...

Wasn't this supposed to be the day that Gannett declared victory in its "Withhold" campaign, asking Tribune shareholders not to vote in Ferro's new slate of directors?

Indeed, it's no accident that the anti-Ferro suit was filed this morning. Consider it a gift to Tribune intended to spoil its big day when Ferro could announce the new board's election. Instead of more champagne-raising at the annual meeting, held in the L.A. office of Tribune law firm Sidley Austin, Tribune's leadership could read through the Delaware brief. Never underestimate spite in the corporate world.

MK-Ultra's "mind control" experiments generally centered around behavior modification via electro-shock therapy, hypnosis, polygraphs, radiation, and a variety of drugs, toxins, and chemicals. These experiments relied on a range of test subjects: some who freely volunteered, some who volunteered under coercion, and some who had absolutely no idea they were involved in a sweeping defense research program.

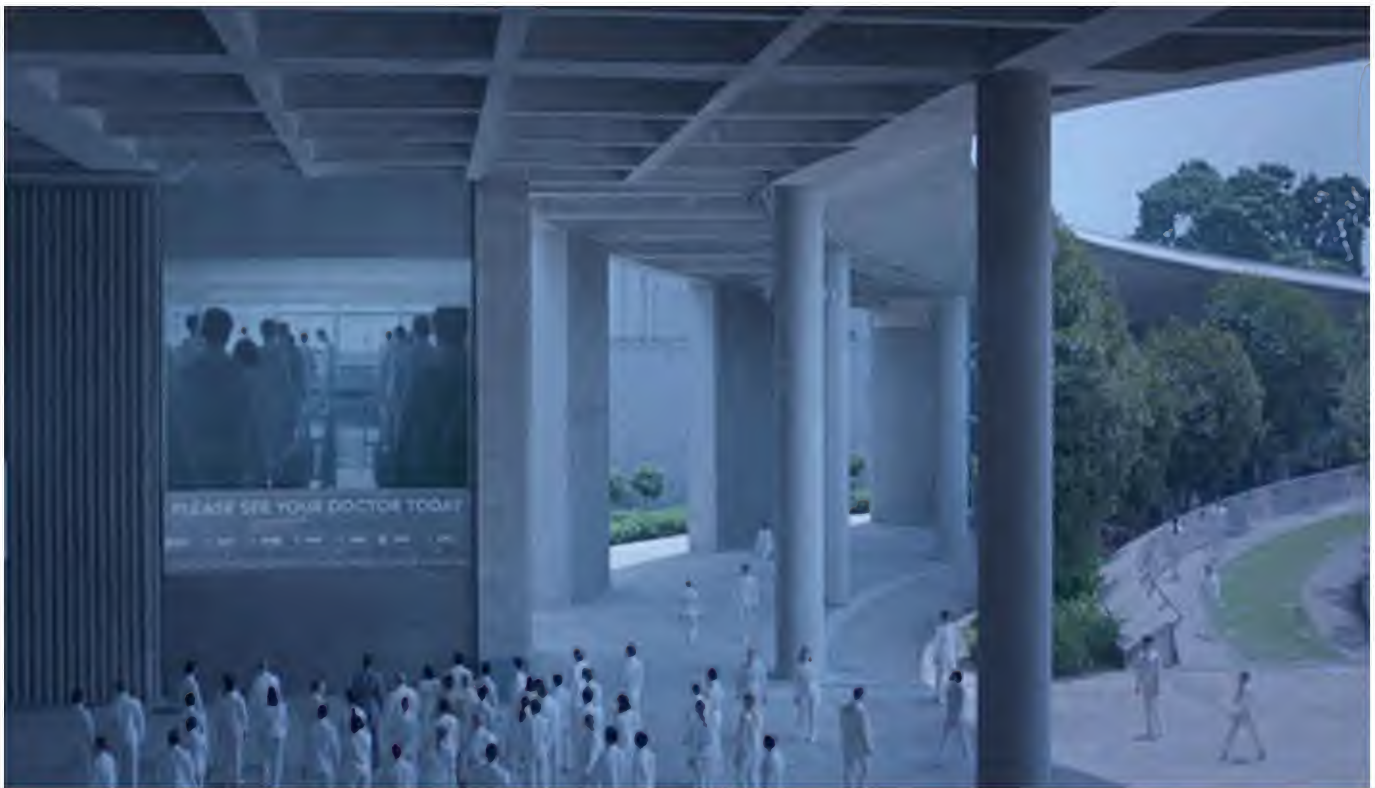

With the advent of MK-Ultra, the government's interest in LSD shifted from a defensive to an offensive orientation. Agency officials noted that LSD could be potentially useful in "[gaining] control of bodies whether they were willing or not."

OKAY, WHO'S TALKING SHIT?

This report summarizes the results of our review of the GEMS election management system, which counts approximately 25 percent of all votes in the United States. The results of this study demonstrate that a fractional vote feature is embedded in each GEMS application which can be used to invisibly, yet radically, alter election outcomes by pre-setting desired vote percentages to redistribute votes. This tampering is not visible to election observers, even if they are standing in the room and watching the computer. Use of the decimalized vote feature is unlikely to be detected by auditing or canvass procedures, and can be applied across large jurisdictions in less than 60 seconds.

GEMS vote-counting systems are and have been operated under five trade names: Global Election Systems, Diebold Election Systems, Premier Election Systems, Dominion Voting Systems, and Election Systems & Software, in addition to a number of private regional subcontractors. At the time of this writing, this system is used statewide in Alaska, Connecticut, Georgia, Mississippi, New Hampshire, Utah and Vermont, and for counties in Arizona, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. It is also used in Canada.

Fractionalized vote:

Instead of "1" the vote is allowed to be $\frac{1}{2}$, or $1\frac{7}{8}$, or any other value that is not a whole number.

What fractionalized votes can do:

They allow "weighting" of races. Weighting a race removes the principle of "one person-one vote" to allow some votes to be counted as less than one or more than one. Regardless of what the real votes are, candidates can receive a set percentage of votes. Results can be controlled. For example, Candidate A can be assigned 44% of the votes, Candidate B 51%, and Candidate C the rest.
